FOR CHILLS, SHAKES, FEVER AND AGUE. TARBORO, N. C., 1878

Dr. R. H. Stevens: Dear Sir-I feel very grateful for what your valuable midicine, Vegetine, have done in my family. I wish to express my thanks by informing you of the wonderful cure of my son; also, to let you know that Vegetine is the best medicine I ever saw for Chills, Shakes, Fever and Ague. My son was sick with measles in 1873, which left him with Hip-joint disease. My son suffered a great deal of pain, all of the time; the pain was so great he did nothing but cry. The doctors did not help him a particle, he could not lift his foot from the floor, he could not move without crutches. I read your advertisement in the Louisville Courier Journal, that Vegetine was a great Blood Purifier and Blood Food. I tried one bottle, which was a great benefit. He kopt on with the medicine, gradually gaining. He has taken eighteen bottles in all, and he is completely restored to health, walks without crutches or cane. He is twenty years of age. I bave a younger son, fifteen years of age, who is subject to Chills. Whenever he feels one coming on, he comes in, takes a dose of Vegetine and that is the last of the Chill. Vegetine leaves no bad effect upon the system like most of the medicine recommended for Chills. I cheerfully recommend Vegetine for such complaints. I think it is the greatest medicine in the world.

Respectfully Mrs. J. W. LLOYD.

VEGETINE.—When the blood becomes lifeless and stagnant, either from change of weather or of climate, want of exercise, irregular diet, or from any other cause, the Vegerine will renew the blood, carry off the putrid humors. cleanse the stomach, regulate the bowels, and impart a tone of vigor to the whole body.

EGETIN FOR DYSPEPSIA, NERVOUSNESS, AND

BEBNARDSTON, MASS., 1878. We, the undersigned, having used Vegetine, take pleasure in recommending it to all those troubled with Humors of any kind, Dyspepsia, Nervousness, or General Debility, it being the great Blood Purifier. who had been long and painful sufferers. EGETIN DRUGGISTS' TESTIMONY.

Mr. H. R. Stevens: Dear Sir-We have been selling your remedy the Vegetine, for about three years, and take pleasure in recommending it to our customers, and in no instance where a blood purifier would reach the case, has it ever failed to effect a cure, to our knowledge. It certainly is the ne plus ultra of renovators. Respectfully,

WEDNESDAY EVENING, APRIL 3.

LADIES UNDERWEAR .- There are many different kinds of underwear now a days, and ladies can choose to suit themselves. The "practical" kind consists of several garments in one, is high in the neck and long in the sleeves, and, like the princesse dress, forms a complete under suit without division, being out all in one, using a slight gauze vest as a found tion for a corset, if one is worn. A garment of this kind is all that is necessray as a foundation for the skirts, and fills the place of chemise, drawers and corset cover. It is not beautiful, but is plain, simple, easy, and well adapted for women of business, for workers, or for traveling purposes. Women who do not need the economics, and who wish to be beautiful, adhere to the diversified garments, and have them made exquisitely, with masses of lace and embroidery, and dainty finishings of delicate blue or pink, us: blue ribbons, very narrow, and arranged in bows formed of many small flat loops.

At present there are three quite distincive styles for fashionable underwear-one is round, another square, the other the Breton. Each of these seems the prettiest till you have seen the other-they are lined so charmingly and finished so coquettishly. There are also three styles of trimming which are equally fashionable, so that it is a mere matter of taste to choose between them, and in getting up a trousseau one dezen of each is generally furnished. The trimmings consist of torchon lace, Irish crocheted lace or Irish point, and French needle work. All have their good points, but the laces carry off the palm for durability. Underskirts are not made as long as formerly with trained dresses; the balayeuses are pleating of stiff white muslin, with or without a lace edge, which may be basted in under the train to any depth, and all around the bottom of the skirt. These retain their place, while the skirt was sweeping aside and displacing or exposing the underskirts. The underskirts, both short and long, are gathered at the back into a deep yoke, which covers the hips and preserves the outline of the form. In the front and on the side they are left as nearly straight as possible. All except very short skirts have a drawing string run in about twelve inches below the line of the waist, which masses the fullness, draws it toward the back, and keeps it in place. Dress extenders and the like show no fullness within several inches of the waist have found entire relief from both, and take great line, and generally consist of flounced skirts or tournures, arranged with strings to tie in front -a sort of trussing process, which is anything but agreeable.

> A DWARF'S WEDDING .- In the year 1710, Peter the Great, Emperor of Russia, celebrated a marriage of dwarfs at Petersburg, which was attended with great parade. On a certain day, which he had ordered to be proclaimed several months before, he invited the whole body of his courtiers and all the foreign ambassadors to be present at the marriage of a pigmy man and woman. The preparations for this wedding were not only very grand, but executed in a style of barbarous and painful ridicule .-Peter ordered that all the dwarf men and women within two hundred miles should repair to the capital, and also insisted that they should be present at the ceremony. For this purpose he supplied them with proper vehicles but so contrived that one horse was seen carrying a dezen of them into the city at once, while the mob followed, shouting and laughing, from behind. Some of them were at first unwilling to obey an order which they knew was calculated to turn them into ridicule, and did not come; but he soon obliged them to obey, and, as a punishment, enjoined that they should wait on the rest at dinner. The whole company of dwarfs amounted to about seventy, besides the bride and bridegroom, who were richly adorned in the extremity of the fashion. For this little company in miniature everything suitable was provided; a low table, small plates, little glasses, and, in short, everything was so fitted as if all things had been dwindled to their own standard. It was the emperor's pleasure to see their gravity and pride-the contention of the women for places, and the men for superiority. This point he attempted to adjust, by ordering that the most diminutive should take the lead but this bred disputes, for none would then consent to sit foremost. All this, however, being at last settled, dancing followed the dinner, and the ball was opened with a minuet by the bridegroom, whose height was exactly three feet two inches. In the end matters were so contrived that this little company, who met together in gloomy disgust, and with an unwillingness to be pleased, being at last familiarized to laughter, entered into the diversion, and became extremely sprightly and entertaining.

"Why, my dear, what is the matter?" What can you mean? You look so depressed. It cannot be-and yet-oh, relieve this killing suspense! Alexander have you failed?" "No. my dear; my credit is yet unimpaired, and business is looking up." "You can't mean to say, dear, that your old pain in he head has come back." "No." "You haven't had to pay the note for your brother Joseph?" "No." 'Have you-now tell me, Alexander Bidlack, have you had another attack of vertigo?"
"No." "Has your cathier broken his Murnhy "Has your cathier broken his Murphy pledge?" "No." "Now I know—I expected it-I knew it all the time-I felt sure it would be so. Mr. Debonair has asked for Seraphina?" 'No, nothing of the kind." "Then tell me. without waiting another minute, what has happened; I can bear it; let me know the worst. 'Well, that button I told you about has got tired of hanging on by one thread, and here it is."-Elmira Gazette.

In early spring all trash should be raked off and removed from the lawn, and while it is rather soft and pliable, run the roller over it well. This will force back any roots or tufts of grass that the frost has lifted, and fill up the cavities. The first mowing should take place ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT as soon as there is anything to clip, as this will cause the grass plants to spread over vacant places and produce finer spears.
